TWO TRAINING
BLIMPS CRASH

Only One Survivor Known;
Three Bodies Recovered,
Nine Missing

(By United Press)
LAKEHURST, N. J., June 9.—Coast guards recovered today three bodies and wreckage from one of two navy training blimps lost in what apparently was a mid-air collision over the Atlantic ocean while on an unexplained "experimental mission."

Only one survivor was known. Still missing were nine of the 13 naval and civilian occupants of the G-1 and the smaller L-2 when they got out last night from the naval air station at Lakehurst. The airships plunged into the ocean about four miles off Manasquan, which is 16 miles northeast of Lakehurst. Sheriff Lewis Menninger of Ocean county reported recovery of the three bodies in the gondola of the L-2, dragged ashore at Point Pleasant beach.

Among the bodies was that of Lt. Cmdr. Clinton S. Rounds of Toms river, senior officer aboard the two craft and a survivor of the dirigible Macon disaster off the California coast in 1935.

All occupants of the blimps were equipped with life-jackets for use should the craft be forced down on the water. They were about 400 feet above the sea when they apparently collided.

Ensign Howard Fahey of Scarsdale, N. Y., was rescued and brought ashore by coast guards early today. He suffered an apparent fracture of an arm in the crash, but swam about until picked up.

A clock in the gondola of the L-2 had stopped at 10:20 p. m. Those dead or missing were:

Lieutenant Commander Rounds, listed as a pilot.

Lieut. Frank A. Trotter, Toms river.

Ensign C. C. Ross, R. F. D. 1, Jacksonville, Fla.

Ensign K. G. Lee, New London, Conn.

O. V. Roos, aviation chief machinist's mate, Lakewood, N. J.

R. C. Poter, aviation chief machinist's mate, Langdon, Kan.

W. H. Herndon, Jr., boatswain's mate, first class, Lakehurst.

These civilians were aboard:

Dr. J. C. Hoover, Middletown, Conn.

L. S. Over, Minneapolis, Minn.

Vella Tilles, San Diego, Calif.

F. C. Gilbert, New London, Conn.

Dr. A. B. Wyse, San Diego.

Fighting Texan

Floats 24 Hours In Midst Of Belching Guns Before Rescue

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN
PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii, June 9.—A tough, fighting Texan who floated for 24 hours amidst the savage Midway island sea battle returned with a stirring eye witness account of Japanese naval destruction as viewed from the surface of the sea—where he hid under a seat cushion from his sunken torpedo-plane to escape detection.

Shot down in the morning of the first day of the historic battle and rescued the next, Ensign George H. Gay's vivid observations of American successes were disclosed last night.

The navy flier from Houston, Texas, is recovering from slight wounds at a hospital here. He was shot down—but not before he had his crack at the Japs.

Spot Aircraft Carriers

Flying with his squadron on June 4, the first day of the battle, Gay and his two mates saw three Jap aircraft carriers, below them, two of the vessels being big 26,900-tonners.

In the face of terrific anti-aircraft fire they leveled for the assault. Gay's machine-gunner was hit, but he nosed the plane down and launched a torpedo into one big carrier.

But bullets from a Jap Zero fighter shot away the controls of Gay's plane. Gay was hit in the left leg. Coolly, he panicked his craft into the sea several miles astern of the carrier.

His gunner was dead. His radio-man, unable to free himself, went down with the plane.

Gay's luck was with him. From the wreckage of his plane floated a bag containing a deflated rubber life-raft, and black cushion of the

IS BUSY PLACE

Occupation Questionnaires
Go Out to Men in iFirst and Second Drafts

In the background, Woods clamps the lock on another U. S. mail bag which contains occupational questionnaires for district men who registered in the first and second selective service calls. These men will receive their occupational questionnaires in the near future.

The first occupational questionnaires went out to the 20 to 44-year old men who registered in the third draft. These have all been returned to the Salem draft board office.

The occupational questionnaire is divided into three parts, one section being turned over to the U. S. Employment Service office here, another being sent to the U. S. Census bureau in Washington, and the third retained by the local board.

Men in the third registration who have returned their occupational forms are expected to receive the original queries shortly.

Nurses' Aid Class
Will Be Graduated

The first volunteer nurses aid class, composed of 24 members from northern Columbiana county, will be graduated at rites in the Memorial building at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday.

City Solicitor Henry L. Reese will be principal speaker at the exercises.

A program of music also is planned and the nurse trainees will receive their caps, diplomas and pins. The public is invited to attend.

Members of the class have successfully completed 80 hours of intensive training as nurses aides, working in the classroom as well as gaining practical experience at Salem City hospital and Dr. Tradler's clinic in Columbiana. Miss Hazel Linn, assistant executive secretary of the Salem Red Cross chapter, has served as instructor for the class, which started in April.

Another class is to be organized in the near future. The work is purely voluntary and the women receive no remuneration. The nurses aid classes are sponsored jointly by the Office of Civilian Defense and the American Red Cross.

254 TODAY'S TOLL
IN SUB SINKINGS

(By Associated Press)

The announced toll of Allied and neutral shipping submarine-sunk in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor stood at 254 today with the navy-reported sinking of one U. S. vessel and the loss of a Brazilian ship off South America, making three revealed this week.

The torpedoing in South American waters of the Alegrete of the Brazilian merchant marine was disclosed yesterday when 11 burned and injured survivors, reached La Guaira, Venezuela, to report that 36 passengers and crew members were missing from the government-owned vessel.

The other recent loss was that of a small American merchantman, torpedoed in the Caribbean May 19. Three men were lost. Thirty-four survivors escaped in two lifeboats and reached a Caribbean port after 30 hours adrift.

company has been working, was included among the possibilities, Zeder replied:

"All materials are being considered."

The committee's objective, he said, is to "do something quickly" to meet the essential transportation needs.

"Thus the present search is mainly for a re-treading substance, designed to rejuvenate tires now on the nation's vehicles."

In the search an almost endless variety of substances has been considered, including linseed oil, asphalt, pitch, oils, glues, casein, soybeans and other materials. The committee has even considered wooden or cushion wheels — and ruled them out as providing no solution.

ODT ASSUMES
CONTROL OVER
ALL BUS LINES

All Inter-City Operations and Present Routes
Are Frozen

ALL COMPETITIVE
SERVICE POOLED

Golf Courses, Dance Pavilions, Other Amusement
Service Is Out

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 9. — The Office of Defense Transportation took war-time control today over all of the nation's inter-city bus operations, ordering present routes frozen, competitive service pooled, and all express service discontinued. The order is effective July 1.

After that date, ODT directed, no inter-city buses may be operated "for the primary purpose" of serving golf courses, athletic fields, race tracks, theaters, dancing pavilions, or "other places conducted primarily for the purpose of amusement or entertainment."

No Beach Service

An ODT spokesman said this would affect bus service to beaches and other resorts provided the buses were used primarily to take passengers to such places.

In addition, except for one daily round trip, bus companies must discontinue schedules which fail to show an average load in both directions of more than 40 per cent of the seating capacity of the buses used. Operators are required to keep records of passenger miles and seat miles and report to ODT any round trip schedule which fails to meet the seating capacity requirement.

"Inter-city service," as defined by the order, excludes runs within 15 miles of city limits and schedules on which the average fare is 35 cents or less.

The order prohibits any extension of bus routes after July 1 without special permission of ODT. Operators of competing lines must plan jointly for maximum use of equipment through pooling of services, staggering schedules, exchange of operating rights, or other means, ODT declared.

Submitted by July 30

Such plans, or a statement as to why no plans have been agreed upon, must be submitted to ODT by July 30.

Express service was ordered stopped, ODT said, to release vehicles needed in local service.

The nationwide control followed two special orders based on operators' plans affecting four bus lines operating in New York and Washington and two lines operating in the west. Other special orders covering particular routes and lines are forthcoming, ODT noted.

New Address Announced

LISBON, June 9.—Clerk of Courts John W. Up until the effective date, July 1, Clerk Coleman states, applications may still be submitted to the Pittsburgh office.

America's Doing the Impossible, Nelson Tells Graduates

(By Associated Press)

Donald M. Nelson, who worked his way through the University of Missouri and returned today as an honored alumnus, told the 1942 graduating class that America is "doing the impossible" with war production exceeding all estimates.

Confidently the chairman of the War Production Board asserted: "This year we shall make 60,000 airplanes, and by the end of the year we shall still be picking up speed for an even faster production in 1943."

Nelson explained: "We have found that our total production of war goods is higher than we had any reason to suppose it could be" when blueprints were prepared for war plants.

"A new aircraft factory was put into production some time ago," he said, as an illustration. "It had been designed to produce 50 airplanes a month, working at full capacity. Now we have discovered that its real capacity is much closer to 150 planes a month."

Everyone Working

One reason for the unexpected production, he said, "is due to the fact that the men who are making the goods—the managers, the engineers, the foremen and the workers alike—are working as they have

NOW LET'S CRY —
THEN FORGET IT

CHICAGO, June 9. — Walt Sands, OCD block captain, has invited his block residents to a meeting where they can cry to their hearts' content about rationing operations.

But, when the wailing has ended, he'll ask the assemblage to view an old tire, sugar cubes, a coffee and a gasoline can and repeat this pledge:

"I do hereby now and forever cry for the last time about sugar, coffee, tires, gasoline and anything else I may have to use less of, or go without, for the duration."

COFFEE, TEA, COCOA
RATIONING IS SEEN

WASHINGTON, June 9.—An official forecast of America's food and clothing situation lists coffee, tea and cocoa as likely to be rationed and clothing as an eventual rationing possibility.

The forecast was by Joseph L. Weiner, deputy director of the War Production Board division of supply. He pictured the commodity situation as follows:

Rationing of coffee, tea and cocoa is likely. Bananas will be scarce. Fish supplies will be limited by the submarine hazard to fishing fleets, and lease-lend shipments will reduce the amount of pork available. But there is no danger that the country will lack necessary staples.

Rationing of clothing probably can be avoided this year, but the WPB is unwilling to make predictions beyond that time. Wool may be forbidden in some types of clothing, and woolen mills will be required to blend other materials into their fabrics. More cotton must be worn.

Shoes may be scarce. However, stocks of shoes and clothing in commercial hands are higher than they ever have been.

Because of power and oil shortages, travel will have to be curtailed.

JAPS PREPARING TO BREAK BAD NEWS

NEW YORK, June 9.—The Japanese government may be preparing its people for bad news concerning the great naval battle of Midway.

A Tokyo newspaper article, quoted today by the Berlin radio, suggested strongly that the Japanese are being warned that they may have to learn soon of the loss of important warships. Nowhere in the broadcast, however, was the battle of Midway mentioned.

So far as New York radio listeners know, the Tokyo radio has not yet said a word about that conflict.

"One cannot always expect victories but must also be able to stand losses" the Berlin broadcast quoted an unnamed Japanese admiral as saying in an interview with the Tokyo newspaper Asahi.

Asahi, in commenting, reminded its readers that the war in the Pacific had just begun.

LONDON, June 9. — A "strong force" of British bombers dropped explosives over hundreds of square miles of Hitler's domain last night, raiding the great industrial Ruhr the Dieppe docks, and railways and airbases in France and Holland.

The RAF lost 18 bombers.

In "intruder" raids over France and Holland—aimed at diverting German defenses from the RAF—main objective — American-made Boston bombers exploded an ammunition dump on the Schiphol airfield and pockmarked the runways with direct hits.

Another pilot derailed a freight train engine and a Hurricane fired cannon shells into six other locomotives. The raids continued the RAF's virtually ceaseless attacks on German rail systems, so vital to Nazi control of western Europe.

The losses were the heaviest reported since

THE NEXT SEVEN MONTHS OF WAR

The six months of United States participation in the war now being reviewed are inconclusive. Infinitely more important are the seven months to come that will be reviewed at the end of 1942. Either the United Nations will develop a vastly greater offensive before Jan. 1, 1943, than they have developed so far or they probably will have lost the war.

There are definitive limits to what can be done in 1943 and 1944 and 1945 to make up for the reverses of 1939, 1940, 1941 and 1942—limits that may not exist in the imaginations of United Nations strategists but do exist in the realities of war-making. When it is considered that Germany, having won most of the victories, is evidently hard-pressed to keep going in its third year of war, what is to be expected of those that have sustained most of the defeats when their resources begin to dwindle?

Obviously, the grand strategy of Hitler and his Italian and Japanese co-conspirators calls for winning the war before the end of 1942. By his own admission, Hitler expected the European situation to be stabilized in his favor long before this; there have been delays, chiefly that encountered in Russia, that he didn't foresee. If by the end of this year Russia's military power could be crushed, the Caucasus oil fields gained, China blasted out of the war as far as organized resistance is concerned, the Mediterranean closed to the British, the blockade of the United States tightened and this country's forces immobilized at home by possibility of large-scale attack, the victory certainly would belong to the Axis powers.

Of course, no one in this country believes these things will happen. Confidence runs high. It is expected that Russia and China will hold, that the German summer drive will be a failure when it comes, that Italy will drop out of the war and leave Germany vulnerable on the south, that the blockade of the Atlantic coast will be broken, that Japanese encroachment on the American zone of security will be checked and that things will grow steadily worse for the Axis.

These are not unreasonable expectations, but it must be plain even to optimists that unless they are backed up with measures to check the enemy's advances this year—not next year or the next year—they are wide open to challenge. The record of the next seven months will be, in all probability, the record of the critical events that determined the outcome of World War II.

PUTTING IT OFF TILL PEACE

Though chief emphasis is being laid on getting things done now—no more too little and too late—there is a corresponding tendency in the secondary level of affairs to put things off till peace. It probably is wisest to face frankly the consequences of giving procrastinators a handier excuse than usual.

During the late depression they were confined strictly to financial excuses; they could not fix the roof because they didn't know where to get the money; they couldn't read the books they always had promised themselves to read because they couldn't afford to buy them or rent them; they couldn't afford to take up the hobby that struck their fancy; they couldn't eliminate the accumulated mistakes in their wardrobes because replacements would cost too much.

But now they are doubly fortified. Cost still is a prime consideration, but it can be backed up with priorities, war savings, anti-inflationary measures and patriotism in general. The proposition when the procrastinators get through with it is ironclad. Nothing possible can be done about anything till peace. If that sometimes seems an evasion of the issue and an easy out for putting off, the war is the cause.

The cumulative effect of overworking so many irrefutable reasons for not doing things that could be done, as well as things that couldn't or shouldn't be done, promises to be tremendous. Plainly, the instant the war is over, millions of promises will fall due. Dentists will work 24 hours a day making delayed fillings. The mails will be flooded with postponed correspondence. Wives will be showered with ex post facto anniversary gifts. Children will have more trinkets than they'll know what to do with—unless, of course, the putter-offers immediately find another excuse as good as the war. Depend on it; they will.

NO ALTERNATIVE

There's a standard dialogue that goes like this:

"What do you think about gas rationing?"

"I think it's a crime. I don't think it will happen. I think the congressmen from the oil states will stop it. I don't think the people will stand for it. I don't think the President will dare to do anything until after the election next November."

This might all be true. It probably isn't. Apparently, the official and unofficial spokesmen for the government are going to quit their odd performance of publicly changing their minds every 24 hours and get down to business. It is reported that the President now has the final decision in his hands.

There is no alternative to gasoline rationing to save tires and automobiles. All theories to the contrary notwithstanding, it is the only thing to do until the United States has undone the damage caused by its attitude of appeasement toward Japan. In a dictatorship it would have been done within a few days after last Dec. 7 and even in a democracy the time for talking has expired.

THE SUSPENSE IS ALL OURS

Whatever it is the Japanese are trying to accomplish with their thrusts at Dutch Harbor and Midway Island, the suspense is all ours. Again, they have seized the initiative. They are keeping the United States forces in the Pacific and on the western coast of North America guessing.

The only thing that saves the situation for the armchair generals at home who are itching for an offensive in all directions at once is the possibility the Japanese may be trying to nip something in the bud—a kind of counter-attack before an attack.

It is a recent discovery by Washington that public opinion has run ahead of official opinion on virtually every point of policy concerned with the war. Certainly on the point of taking the offensive—risking much to gain much—public opinion already has crystallized for anything that will make the Japanese wonder what may be coming next. It has been a long time since those bombers swooped down from Shanghai.

THE STARS SAY:

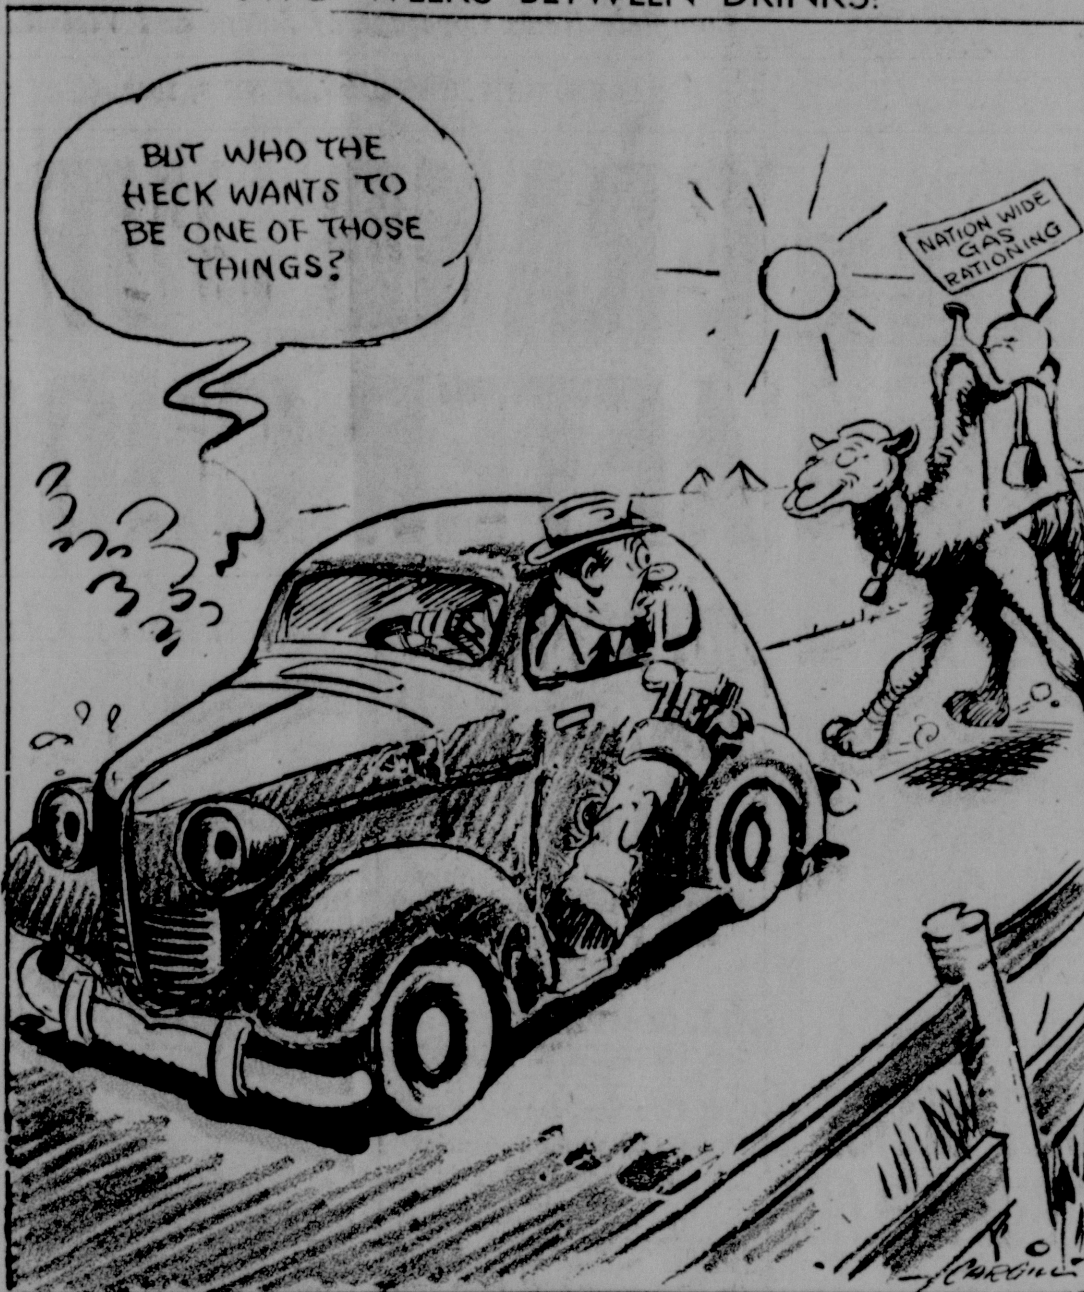

For Wednesday, June 10.

THE EMPHASIS may be placed on purely private, social, domestic, cultural and sentimental activities on this day, judging by the lunar transits in influence. All pertaining to private life may be benignly stimulated, promising much pleasure, gratification and sociability. Also there should be success and profit in all phases of business that concern the more personal life, such as drama, entertainment, art and more practical aspects of domestic or social interest. It might be well to be on guard against petty deceits, intrigues or irregularities.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which the intimate affairs of private life dominate the activities. In social, cultural, domestic and affectional associations there might be much satisfaction, with pleasure and excitement, parties, engagements or marriages. All business enterprises concerning these may move into high grooves and prove lucrative as well as pleasant and sociable. It would be well to side-step trivial deception, or intrigues or peculiar snares.

A child born on this day should be gifted with many social and cultural abilities, and be refined, sensitive and magnetic. It might make brilliant success in any of the fine arts.

"TWO WEEKS BETWEEN DRINKS!"

ON QUESTION OF ATHLETIC INJURIES

They're Subject to Various Disabilities

BY LOGAN CLENDENING M. D.

Yesterday we wrote of one of the conditions which may be induced by summer athletics or may affect the armed forces in training, namely, foot strain. There are a number of other disabilities that occur from athletic exercise and marching which, though apparently minor, at times give a great deal of trouble and anxiety and may require time out for more or less prolonged periods.

One of these is the condition known as "muscle bound." There is no one cause for this; it is probably due to a number of things—cause any part of the motor system is a mass of muscles, tendons, bones, tendinous insertions, bursae, etc., all of them likely to be torn, sprained, irritated or inflamed from overuse.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The muscle bound baseball or tennis player is unable to move some limb either effectively or without pain and this may be due to any one of a combination of the conditions described in the previous sentence. The most positive thing we know about the condition is that it is no use to try to rush the treatment but that it responds to rest at first, followed by heat and massage and gradual use and exercise.

A somewhat similar condition is known as "charley horse." This is pretty well localized to one muscle, comes on suddenly with a strained movement and is undoubtedly due to the rupture of a small blood vessel with a consequent hemorrhage into the body of the muscle or rupture of a muscle sheath. It also responds to time, patience, rest and massage.

Shin Splints

"Shin splints" is a term used especially by track men. It is a pain along the shin bone which extends into the toe and extensor muscles of the foot. It is due to many minor injuries, such as occur in running on hard surfaces, pounding on a track, cement floor or the hardwood floor in a gymnasium. It is especially likely to occur from sudden starts and stops.

Any athlete is likely to use and punish one limb more than the other. Shin splints occur usually early in the training season. Treatment is slow and recovery is prolonged. The front surface of the lower part of the shin is very tender and hard and tense to feel. The best method of relief is by means of circular taping. It is probably due to a tearing of the muscles at their insertion in the shin bone or in the foot. As with the other forms of athletic injury, the taping can be supplemented by heat and massage.

So-called "tennis elbow" was described first by a physician tennis player. He said it was a symptom complex rather than a pathological entity. The end of the bone in the elbow becomes progressively sore and in the course of time it cannot be used at all. An X-ray examination shows nothing; diagnosis has to be made by someone familiar with the condition and of course depends on the history of playing tennis and the gradual onset.

It is not due to a sudden strain, but is probably due to an inflammation of the bursa around the elbow joint. For mild cases the old formula of rest, heat and massage works all right, but in very severe cases it is sometimes necessary to dissect out the bursa surgically.

I hope that all Army doctors who have to deal with men in training who are doing extra marching and athletics will become acquainted with the book by Augustus Thorndike: Athletic Injuries: Prevention, Diagnosis and Treatment. Our medical courses do not give medical students very much instruction along these lines.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Femoral Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CRIME AT CASTAWAY

by EDITH BRISTOL

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN
Estelle, dressed, in all, with a long crepe veil and widow's crepe turban on her curls, Estelle made a theatrical entrance. Behind her, in the staid Sydney with two oaks on the stairs, was bringing the other pieces of her luggage. She looked surprised—and not too surprised to see so many of us to—didn't know this was a conference. "But, of course, I wouldn't be included," she said. "I'm not a conference, Estelle," Marsha added. "Are you not?" Mrs. Gregg's voice shrilled. "Why should I stay? I don't welcome here. I'm not coming about anything. I had everything to think this would be my son and I are cheated out—was working herself into a hysterical mood. "What's up?" Allen demanded. "I'll drive over at once." "I can't tell you now. But I can positively identify the person. I'll be at my house at 8 tonight and give you the whole story. Don't come until 8." He rang off. "Why wait until 8?" demanded Lance. "I don't like waiting." And it would have been better if they had not waited! Lance wanted to leave at once for Durfee's house, but the sheriff was firm. "No use going until the hour he set," he advised. "He's probably got a reason for wanting us at eight. Jumping the gun might spoil the show." But Lance fretted and fidgeted with a holster strapped under his left arm, beneath his suede jacket. He looked every few seconds at his wrist watch and made us all uncomfortable. Only the five of us dined together. Estelle ordered dinner early in her room; so Marsha, Lotius, Lance, the sheriff and I labored through a miserable meal. Craven's place was still set at the table—Martha try to be as brave and patient about it as you can. Stay here and make the best of things as we find them? If there is anything we can do to help find the criminal, certainly we should be ready to do it." Her plea worked. Still wiping her eyes, Estelle turned back to the stairs. Sydney thanked Miss Gregg with a look, picked up the bags and with Issu retraced their steps to the suite above. I started to take up my work again when the telephone rang. Lance answered the call. "For you, sheriff," he said. Allen reached for the instrument. "Please listen on the extension in the hall," he said, "and see if there's somebody ringing in on the line. I won't answer until you get there." I crossed the room quickly and took down the receiver in the hall. "This you, sheriff? This is Worth Durfee." I heard a "click" on the line as somebody—I couldn't tell where—took down another receiver. I could hear an almost breathless listener. "Something has happened that makes me decide to add to the statement I made to you. About the person hiding in the trees. I told you I didn't know who it was. Now I DO know—" a pause. Again I heard—or perhaps I felt it, instead of hearing it—somebody hanging on his words. "What's up?" Allen demanded. "I'll drive over at once." "I can't tell you now. But I can positively identify the person. I'll be at my house at 8 tonight and give you the whole story. Don't come until 8." He rang off. "Why wait until 8?" demanded Lance. "I don't like waiting." And it would have been better if they had not waited! Lance wanted to leave at once for Durfee's house, but the sheriff was firm. "No use going until the hour he set," he advised. "He's probably got a reason for wanting us at eight. Jumping the gun might spoil the show." But Lance fretted and fidgeted with a holster strapped under his left arm, beneath his suede jacket. He looked every few seconds at his wrist watch and made us all uncomfortable. Only the five of us dined together. Estelle ordered dinner early in her room; so Marsha, Lotius, Lance, the sheriff and I labored through a miserable meal. Craven's place was still set at the table—Martha ordered it laid every evening just as when her brother was alive—but he seldom spent more than a few minutes at the ranch house since the tragedy. Affairs at the office, he explained. Not that it mattered. At last—it was a few minutes before seven—Allen was willing to start for the Durfee place, yielding to Lance's idea that they should spend a bit of time along the road and see who came and went. I pulled on my beret, buttoned my coat and stuffed my notebook into my pocket. "Miss Lane isn't going, Allen," Lance protested. "This may turn out to be no place for a girl." "I think you're more alarmed than you need be," Allen said, opening the door. "But if she doesn't want to come, she needn't. I'll take his statement and have him run over it again tomorrow for signature." "I was on the spot. I looked at Lance, who was frowning at me. Then at the sheriff. I didn't want to offend Lance, nor did I want to let the sheriff down. "I'm not afraid," I said. "I work here." The dense fog was drifting in over the hills above the ranch house as he started up the back road from Castaway toward Durfee's house. I had no idea the fog could come in so suddenly here, nor be so cold and penetrating. We drove at a snail's pace, running by the side of the road, the headlights of our car cutting queer yellow tunnels through the thick white mist. It was a low fog, hugging the hills, the beat of the ocean sounding very loud. I wondered if it sounded clearer on a foggy night—but I didn't ask any questions. No body talked. At the boundary fence Allen pulled his car to a sudden stop and Lance got out to unlock the gate. Suddenly the sheriff switched off his lights. "Listen," he said, "there is a car coming!" I listened. Through the blanket of fog I heard a distant motor. Allen reversed his car and slipped back off the road into the bushes. Lance stepped back from the gate and stood by my side of the car. I think he slipped his hand over mine then. From the direction of the Durfee house, beyond the nearest rise of ground, we could plainly hear the oncoming automobile. In another minute its headlights were visible, cutting through the wreaths of fog. Its driver was cautious, pulling up the slope in low gear until the machine neared the fence. Then it stopped. Someone got out, crossed the beam of light from the headlights and we could make out the figure. "It's a woman!" Allen whispered. "By gosh—" Lance muttered. "It's Estelle." It was Estelle. Her head was covered by a kerchief; her dress was covered by a dark coat. But as she stood at the gate, unlocking the padlock, her face was plain in the glare of the yellow tunnels of light—and it was ghastly! "That's her car number, too," Allen was writing it down in the darkness. "No wonder Durfee didn't want us until 8," he said. Lance swore softly under his breath. "And her husband not dead a week I always thought she was a —" he didn't finish it. "It may have been a business call," — Estelle's machine was through the gate and she replaced the padlock as the sheriff spoke again. "Business call—" snorted Lance. "Switch on your lights and let's get started. I want to get this off my chest." "Wait a minute," I broke in. "Don't you hear something?" We listened, tensely, in the dripping fog. A low silence. Then the sound of another car, slipping cautiously up the slope to the top of the rise where we were hidden. This second car drove closer to the gate before it stopped; we could not see the face of the driver when he stepped out to unlock it. But we could—all three of us—make out his familiar figure. The dapper tweed topcoat, the light, soft felt, crushed jauntily at an angle on his head. It was Craven. "This must have been a field day for Durfee's friends," sneered Lance. "It's Harry," said Allen. "But not his car." "It's a company car," whispered Lance. "He's too slick to use his own car for his dirty work. His is probably safely garaged somewhere to give him a foolproof alibi." "It may not be dirty work," Allen mused. "After all, both those drivers know Durfee and both of them have keys to this gate. They may have a good excuse—" "Sure. And Estelle may have a good reason why she takes her meals in her room—early. Though I don't think much of her taste. And Craven—say, all I could tell you about that four-flushing—But let's get started. Even if we hit the next car. It's getting near to eight. Let's go." "O. K." The sheriff looked at his big watch under the dashlight. "It'll be eight when we get there." He swung back into the roadway, clicked on his lights and we headed down the slope. I could feel Lance's fury in the very way he held himself, stiff and motionless beside me. (To be continued)

Nelson, U. S. war production chief; Henry Ford; Oliver Lyttleton, Britain's war production chief; W. S. Robinson of Australia; Ernest Kanzer, member of the WPB; Edsel Ford, son of Henry Ford and an executive of the Ford plant, and M. L. Bricker, production chief at the Ford Willow Run plant.

Vitamins and minerals

Use GAS simmer cooking Low temperature roasting

Too often, vitamins and minerals have been lost when the water in which the vegetables are cooked is thrown away.

This war has spotlighted the bad news that we haven't been as well-fed a nation as we thought. About one-third of all men rejected for military service for physical disabilities had defects related to poor nutrition. Since then, studies show that only a fourth of the American people are really well-fed.

What to do? The Government decided to educate the public on food values—to show that valuable vitamins and minerals are too often thrown away, never get to the table, just go down the drain or into the steam of over-cooked foods.

Two features of modern Gas cooking lend themselves to this move to conserve vitamins and minerals. One is the method of low-flame simmer cooking in small amounts of water, which saves vitamins and minerals. The other is low-temperature roasting, which saves food, keeps it more appetizing, and saves valued food elements as well.

Your Natural Gas Company, to cooperate with the Government's program on nutrition, offers full information on ways to use modern Gas cooking so as to serve the vitamins and minerals you pay for. Call your Gas company's Home Service Department today.

HERE'S HOW TO SAVE VITAMINS—Fuel!

1. Cook with 1/2 to 1 inch of water in covered pan.
2. When steaming starts, turn gas to low flame, continue cooking.
3. Use liquids not absorbed by vegetables—they contain valuable minerals and vitamins.

HEYDRICH MARTYR. HITLER DECLARES

BERLIN. (From German Broadcasts) June 9.—Adolf Hitler termed Reinhard Heydrich, assassinated Gestapo official, "one of our martyrs" today at a state funeral shortly after Heinrich Himmler, head of the secret police declared "it is our holy duty to avenge" the protector of Bohemia and Moravia.

Hitler made an unannounced appearance at the funeral, leaving his headquarters on the Russian front, to confer on the slain No. 2 Gestapo chief "the highest award of the German order."

He placed a wreath on the coffin and embraced Heydrich's two sons before leaving the funeral hall. (Heydrich died last week after two undetected Czech assassins had bombed his automobile and machine-gunned him. Already 234 Czechs have been reported executed in reprisal.)

type bombardiers used to kneel upon. He used the life-raft bag to keep himself afloat, and hid under the cushion to avoid detection.

Then from the surface of the sea he had a fish-eye view of the epochal battle in its most violent stages.

Torpedoes Score Hits
Before his eyes, American torpedo-planes scored direct hits on the two other carriers. Tremendous fires burst from the wounded ships. Internal explosions ripped their sides and belched great gushes of flame and smoke.

He saw United States aircraft blast over Jap naval units; he saw Jap planes, their mother ships aflame, listing or their decks battered into uselessness, circle helplessly for a landing place; he saw a line of burning Jap ships pass close by him, pouring black smoke into the darkening sky.

Gay reported that one carrier could be listed as a certain loss, and the two other carriers were probably lost.

In the twilight, Gay inflated his rubber lifeboat after making emergency repairs and clambered in for a few winks of sleep. Several hours after sun-up a navy patrol plane spotted his life-raft and picked him up.

As they flew back to their base, the surface of the battle area was littered with black Japanese life-rafts, presumably used in abandoning ship. Great patches of oil were seen.

DEPENDENTS' PAY BILL IS APPROVED

Congress takes Action, Also Agrees On $50 Pay for Service Men

(The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 9.—Dependents of army and navy men had congressional assurance today that their financial needs would be taken care of by Uncle Sam.

House passage late yesterday of legislation embodying the general pay provisions of a bill previously approved by the senate put both branches overwhelmingly on record in favor of the same scale of payments, leaving extraneous provisions to be worked out by a joint conference committee.

At the same time the senate agreed, 58 to 20, to raise the minimum monthly pay of service men to $50, effective as of June 1.

On the dependents' allowance bill, the only disagreement between senate and house was over a senate provision under which the definition of dependency for draft purposes would have been broadened to include factors other than actual financial dependency, such as the family relationship.

Members of the house military committee told the house the scale of payments purposely was kept moderate to prevent local draft boards from getting the impression they could draft family heads indiscriminately.

$22 Deduction
The scale calls for a $22 deduction from the service man's pay, to which a federal allowance of $28 would be added for a wife, $12 for the first child and $10 for each additional child.

In all cases involving "Class A" dependents—wife or children, or both—the deductions and allowances are mandatory.

Allotments and allowances for "Class B" dependents, such as parents, brothers and sisters, provide for a $22 deduction from the service man's pay and federal additions of $15 for one parent, $25 for two parents and $5 for each dependent brother or sister. These deductions are optional with the service man.

In cases where a man has dependents of both classes, and elects to contribute to both, his total deductions would be $27 monthly, of which $22 would go to the "Class A" group, and $5 to those in "Class B." The federal payments would remain unchanged.

Affected by the bill are dependents of men up to and including the rank of line sergeant in the army and third class petty officer in the navy.

Veon's Condition Good

The condition of Karl Veon, victim of this morning's shooting at Crawford's corners, is described as good at the Central Clinic. Physicians say the abdomen shot did not penetrate deeply.

According to deputy sheriffs and Prosecutor Frank Springer, Mrs. Veon shot her husband as he sat on the edge of a bed following an argument over medicine. The weapon was a .22 calibre revolver, the deputies said.

He is reported to have walked to the highway, Route 30, in front of his home and hailed a passing truck in which Clyde Dawson and William Shuman of Sistersville, W. Va., were driving to Alliance in search of work.

Mr. and Mrs. Veon have been married nine months, deputy sheriffs learned. She is the widow of Jay Crawford, who died about two years ago.

Prosecutor Springer has indicated that a charge of shooting with intent to kill would be filed against Mrs. Veon.

United Cigars Halt Recreation Victory String At Five, 4-3

RITCHIE STARS IN UPSET; JACKSONS, PHALANX VICTORS

Zines Loses First Game of Year As Cigars Hit Peak

The United Cigars reached the peak performance of their impressive run to the top last night at Centennial park when they stopped the Recreation five-game winning streak, 4-3. Dale Ritchie not only hurled a good game—he gave up but seven hits—but he played an important role in the winning of the game.

The Cigars tallied a lone score in the second chapter and held that narrow margin until the fourth when the Reds tied the count. Each team scored a run in the fifth and the game was all knotted going in to the last frame. The league leaders put together enough hits to net a run and then depended upon the strong arm of Johnny Zines.

Zines ran into trouble almost immediately and soon found a deadlocked game on his hands and the winning run—in the form of Dale Ritchie—perched on third base with only one away. A long fly brought the hurler in with the run that broke the Recreation's string.

In order to finish up the Class A first round this week, the league-leading Recreation will play a double header Thursday night meeting Jacksons in the first game and the Saxons in the night cap, it was announced today by Joe Kelley.

Ritchie and "Shorty" Borton each pounded out two hits to pace the Cigars while Stratton and McArthur each collected a like number for the Reds. One of Ritchie's blows was a double and one of McArthur's a three base hit.

Jacksons Win, 23-5

Jackson tuned up their batting eyes on the pitching of Gus Falk of the Saxons last night as they slammed out the season's most impressive run total in crushing the Saxons, 23-5. Putting their 18 hits to the best use and taking advantage of 10 Saxons errors, Jacksons romped from the third inning in.

At the end of two innings of play the score stood 4-3 in favor of Jacksons. They then settled down to their task of winning a game and proceeded to plate seven runs in the third frame and seven more in the fourth. They tallied four in the fifth and another in the sixth in running up their unbelievable sum.

The Saxons were out of the game after the second inning, having scored three runs in the first. They added lone tallies in the fourth and sixth. Herm Linder got two hits to lead the Saxons in a losing fight while Phil Cozad and Ralph Davis each slapped out three safeties to star for the winners. Practically every member of the Jacksons crew pounded out two safeties or more.

In a third Class A tilt, the Phalanx hung a 10-4 loss on the Electric Furnace. A three run burst in the opening frame and a six run spurge proved to be all the fraternity needed to chalk up a win. The Furnace scored its first run in the fifth and added three more in the final stanza.

Carl Field and "Beanie" Tinsley led the Phalanx nine-hit attack upon Pitcher Courtney of the Furnace, each getting two singles. Howard Gray and Bob Bichel collected two hits each to star for the losers.

New Flying Safety Group Aims To Reduce Accidents

Bomber Which Crashes In Pasture Can Never Fire a Bullet or Drop a Bomb, Army Says

NEW YORK, June 9. — In 21 months the number of pilots in our army air force increased 315 per cent, the number of flying students increased 1,000 per cent, the number of military airplanes increased 400 per cent, and there was an increase of 800 per cent in the total of hours flown.

Such rapid expansion inevitably has brought with it a heightening in the ratio of inexperienced to experienced pilots. Once the proportion was 3 to 1. Then it was 6 to 1. Today it is close to 50 to 1, and as our air force personnel is multiplied by leaps and bounds it is expected to reach 150 to 1 some time in 1943.

Accident Rate Up
This dilution of experienced personnel has brought a considerable rise in the accident rate—so substantial that Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, air force chief, has established a directorate of Flying Safety which has the objective of reducing aircraft accidents by 25 per cent during the next 12 months.

"A smashed-up army bomber in a midwestern cow pasture," writes Col. S. R. Harris, director of flying safety, in the latest issue of the Air Forces News Letter, "is more of a victory for the Japanese than a flying fortress brought down in combat over Burma."

"When the nearest zero fighter is some 4,000 miles away, it means that this country has lost one of the most valuable cog in its war machinery without a bullet being fired or a bomb being dropped in return."

Col. Harris emphasizes the concern among air force officials over the current rate of accidents to every 1,000 hours of flying—accidents, he declares, which are due in eight out of 10 cases to human failure.

"This means they are preventable. This means they can be stopped by constant vigilance, by the exercise of common sense and the observance of the fundamental rules of safe flying."

Four of these basic rules, which the 20 regional safety officers under Col. Harris' direction will hammer home to commanding officers and aviation cadets alike, are:

Get thoroughly acquainted with your airplane so you will instinctively go for the right controls in case of emergency;

Don't be foolish, cocky or careless;

DERRINGER'S BID FOR FAME SPOILED IN FINAL INNING

Big Paul Hurls No-Hit Ball Through First Eight Frames

BY JUDSON BAILEY

Houdini at his best could not have turned the tables on the Boston Braves as swiftly and completely as the Cincinnati Reds performed the trick this last weekend. Before Friday the Reds were floundering futilely in the second division of the National league and the Braves, who had been a bold second for quite a spell, still were holding determinedly to third place.

Then Casey Stengel led his band into an ambush at Cincinnati and in four days the Reds beat the Braves six times—lifting Cincinnati to third and dropping Boston to fifth.

The Reds completed their sweep yesterday with a 3-1 triumph on the three-hit hurling of big Paul Derringer.

For eight innings the righthander had a no-hit game and the only Boston player to get on base reached first through an error in the opening inning. Derringer finally was tapped for three singles and a run in the ninth.

It was Derringer's second success of the season.

There was only one other game scheduled in the major leagues yesterday and in this the New York Yankees squeezed out an 11-10 decision over Cleveland when relief pitcher Tom Ferrick made a wild throw on Joe Gordon's sacrifice bunt with two on base in the 11th inning.

It was a suitable payoff for a game in which each club used three pitchers and the world champions made 16 hits and three errors to Cleveland's 15 hits and two miscues. Ken Keltner made five hits and Jeff Heath produced his seventh and eighth home runs of the year and singled home the tying run in the ninth inning after Keltner had tripped.

Cleveland could have recaptured second place in the American league from the idle Detroit Tigers by winning, but the Yankees made it their 26th triumph in 31. As a sideline, Joe Gordon stretched his hitting streak to 25 games and Buddy Hassett extended his to 20.

Pursuit Squadrons Cited

As proof that proper precautions and common sense can make for safe flying, Col. Harris could cite the example of two pursuit squadrons commanded by Capt. Mervin L. McVickie, accorded special mention by the war department recently for completing 2,393,745 miles of flying without a casualty, despite the fact one of the squadrons—35th of the 39th pursuit group—was active in the Louisiana and North Carolina maneuvers, two intercept command exercises, and wartime operations along the Pacific coast.

The director of flying safety makes special mention of the fact that accident reports of aircraft investigating committees show that 66 per cent of all accidents occur in landings or taxings.

"These above all others," he says, "can be prevented by the use of common sense and by ability of the pilot to 'stay on his toes.'"

In addition to the regional officers, who will keep close contact with air force units in their areas, the directorate of flying safety is organizing a far-reaching program of instruction and education—by means of articles, posters, radio programs, motion pictures and photographs.

"This is war," Col. Harris concludes. "Our purpose is to win it. But we can't win it with airplanes that are strewn in pieces over the countryside, and with pilots who crack up before they even see a Jap simply because they are too careless, too cocky or too disobedient to observe the fundamental rules of flying safety."

One-Minute Sports Page

Report kicking around Detroit is that Notre Dame will play a big game, maybe against Georgia Tech, in Briggs stadium. The N. C. A. A. mile championship at Lincoln, Neb., next Saturday lost a lot when Dartmouth's Bon Burnham, who best MacMicheil last week, decided not to go west. Bill before the Louisiana legislature will authorize the fair grounds track to prosecute bookies operating during the winter racing season.

Capping the Climax

They tell more stories than you can believe about happenings in the Kitty league, but until further notice this should stand as the error record: The other night John Pavoris, Fulton's rookie third baseman, fielded a slow bouncer. As he straightened up, his cap flew off and he threw the ball right into the cap. Together they sailed over the pitcher's head, grazed the umpire and landed halfway between the mound and first base. The base runners were too surprised to run and the first baseman didn't know where to look. Pavoris finally dashed across and retrieved the pill himself, but not until two runs had scored.

LOU FINNEY, RED SOX UTILITY MAN, 'BACK IN GROOVE'

Popular Alabaman Takes Injured Pete Fox's Out-field Berth

BOSTON—Give Lou Finney half a chance and the Boston Red Sox handy man will shoot your job right out from under you.

The soft-spoken Alabaman is at it again and Pete Fox is the latest to discover that he's probably due for a session of bench riding.

Lou kept even as great a star as Dom DiMaggio on the bench for half a season two years ago and Fox, sidelined with a toe injured in batting practice last Thursday, can only hope the Finney bat doesn't catch fire one again.

As a matter of fact, though, the bat is starting to blaze. Lou has been batting an anemic .179 but don't think his batting figure won't climb for Lou's a hittin' fool when he's in there every day.

He hadn't been seeing much service until the Fox injury enabled him to break into a regular berth.

He signaled his entry into the lineup last week by having a perfect day at bat. Next day he drove in three Boston runs in a 4-2 triumph over the Chicago White Sox. Two days later he broke up the nightcap of a doubleheader, driving in the winning run.

It certainly looks as though Lou is on the way once again and even Pete Fox will be glad about that for there's no more popular guy on the Red Sox squad.

He's a ball player ready to step into the breach wherever he's needed, and playing the game up to the hilt every day.

RATIONING WILL HINGE ON SURVEY

Postponement of Action Is Seen Until Nation's Scrap Is Inspected

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 9.—Postponement of any nationwide gasoline rationing until a comprehensive survey is made of the country's available scrap rubber was predicted in congressional quarters today.

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (D-Ky.) said he understood such a survey was being contemplated and other informed legislators added that it was likely President Roosevelt would await the results before deciding whether it was necessary to put all private automobiles on short fuel rations.

Barkley told reporters there were all kinds of estimates on the amount of rubber that could be reclaimed from the scrap pile, ranging from the 10,000,000 ton estimate of one big business executive down to a War Production Board expert's guess that only 700,000 tons could be obtained.

Meanwhile, Price Administrator Leon Henderson reported to a senate committee it was likely that slightly more than 300,000 tons would be reclaimed in 1942. Henderson informed a special committee investigating the gasoline situation, 6,000,000 tire caps probably could be made from this amount.

At the same time Henderson expressed the opinion no combination of tire conservation measures which did not include nationwide gasoline rationing could hope to avert "a serious transportation crisis."

"Even if improvement in the scrap situation were to make possible the top-capping of 6,000,000 passenger car tires this year and in future years," he said, "there is no reason to regard the motor transport problem as solved."

USO Is The 'Home Away From Home' For Boys In Service

NEW YORK, June 8.—Strictly speaking, this is not a military story. Yet it is a story of important war work, work that perhaps provides a clue to the man-for-man superiority of U. S. soldiers, sailors and marines over their Axis opposite numbers.

Individuality, the ability to call your soul your own, and still be a hell-for-leather fighting man, has a lot to do with that. Discipline and regimentation are essential factors in any successful war effort.

Yet the soldier, sailor or marine, to produce peak performance all the way, needs a place where he can forget to salute, where he can resume his nickname and discard the feeling he's just end man in a column of fours.

Therefore, this story: The sentry guarding the isolated strip of Pacific beach front is alert and tense. That truck rolling along towards him has no business here, he's sure. He brings his Garand rifle to the "ready," barks out an authoritative "halt!"

Wait, That's Different! At that moment the truck's wheels hit a patch of loose sand. It slows sideways. The rising moon picks out the foot-high letters emblazoned on its side: "USO."

"Hey, gang, come a-runnin'," yells the delighted sentry to his mates of the anti-aircraft battery. "The USO has found us, even in this forsaken hole..."

It costs 50 cents to have a single shirt laundered in Alaska, $3 for overnight accommodation in even the lowest-priced hotel. That's a tough tariff on coast guard pay. The local USO solved the problem for the boys in blue by importing a washing machine from Seattle, which now is in almost constant operation. In the same clubhouse is a dormitory, where service men get clean, comfortable beds for 25 cents.

A troop train is steaming east, headed perhaps for an overseas embarkation point. Its next stop, for only a 10-minute halt, is the home town of one of the soldiers aboard. He hasn't seen his parents in 15 years, hasn't seen his parents in that time.

The soldier approaches his commanding officer, says "I'd give anything to see them." The officer wires ahead to the USO lounge in the town's railway station. As the train pulls in, father and mother are there to greet their son.

"And the officer told me later," says Randall J. Leboeuf, Jr., chairman of USO's transit service committee, "that lad was a far better soldier from then on..."

The People's Service
This is the USO, which Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, head of the army's services of supply, has called the "people's service to the fighting men."

Committees in 6,000 communities are campaigning now to raise a war fund of $32,000,000 to maintain these "homes away from home" in Maine and California, Newfoundland and the Canal Zone, Florida and Hawaii.

That sounds like a lot of money. But the USO, supplying outside our army and navy establishments what the government and Red Cross provide on the inside, now has more than 700 clubhouses in 45 of the 48 states and on overseas stations.

Furnishes recreational facilities—libraries, game rooms, showers, to name just a few—used by more than 5,000,000 men a month in the United States alone.

Stages camp shows that will play to 3,500,000 service men a year: Has five mobile service clubs, stocked with everything from the latest movies to sewing kits, to reach isolated stations on the Atlantic coast, and 10 more, the gift of Edsel Ford, to tour the west coast.

Takes care of an average of 5,000 men a day with its troops-in-transit service in railway stations and bus terminals in 36 cities.

Thus it combines under one general administration the work done heretofore by its six component agencies—the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., the National Catholic Community Service, the Salvation Army, the Jewish Welfare Board and the National Travelers Aid association.

LOS ANGELES — California's dogs have been called to the colors. Col. W. W. Hicks, commander of the Los Angeles Harbor Defenses, has announced the Army will accept dogs of good health and intelligence to be trained for national defense. Duties of the canine combatants are a military secret.

DEATHS

HARRY DOBBINS
Harry Dobbins, 60, died at 6:30 p. m. Monday at his home on the Washington rd., of a cerebral hemorrhage. He had been in poor health for five years.

The son of William and Frances Dobbins, he was born in Pittsburgh Aug. 19, 1881. He operated a grocery and filling station.

He is survived by his wife, Mary; one stepdaughter, Dolores Baris, at home; one stepson, Lyle Sheel, of N. Jackson; and one grandchild. He had lived in Washingtonville for nine years, going there from Canfield.

Funeral service will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the Arbaugh-Pearce funeral home in charge of Rev. Charles Richards, pastor of the Christian church in Canfield. The burial will be in Canfield cemetery.

EDGAR FOGG
Mrs. Donald Barber of Damascus has received word of the death of her brother, Edgar Fogg, 82, Sunday night at his home in Pasadena, Calif.

The son of Edwin and Drucilla Fogg, he was born east of Garfield on March 4, 1860. He lived there until he was 20, when he went to Chicago and from there to California, where he has lived for 15 years.

He is survived by two sisters, Isabel Barber, Damascus, and Mrs. Hannah Maris of Nortonville, Kan.; one brother, Albert, of Pasadena, and several nephews and nieces.

CARE IS URGED IN MAKING JOB REPORT

Many Occupational Questionnaires Found Incomplete, Faulty, Slowing Up Service

An urgent appeal to men in this area to aid the war effort by using more care in filling out their occupational questionnaires was issued today by Arthur S. Johnston, local manager of the United States Employment Service.

"Preliminary reports indicate that many of the questionnaires returned to local selective service boards and employment service offices are faulty or incomplete," Johnston said. These occupational questionnaires constitute permanent job qualification records, and it is of vital importance that registrants fill out their questionnaires fully, legibly, and accurately.

According to Johnston's report, quite a large percentage of the questionnaires received have been incorrectly or incompletely filled out. "In such cases," he pointed out, "it is necessary to call in the registrant in order to correct the errors or supply the missing information. This not only increases the expense and time of performing the occupational inventory, but also inconveniences the person called in."

Upon completion of the occupational inventory, the employment service will have a complete occupational file of all manpower between the ages of 18 and 64. Data collected will be used principally in three ways: First, to consider the status of men urgently needed in war production; second, to replace workers now deferred from military service on occupational grounds, where possible, with other qualified persons who for any reason are presently ineligible for military service; and third, to speed up war production by promoting the transfer of workers from non-essential to essential work.

Technical Sergeant Lon E. Auker of Mitchell Field, Long Island, has been promoted to rank of master sergeant. His wife is the former Julia Bodo of Salem.

Krauss Is Promoted
Donald Richard Krauss of 513 E. Fifth st. has been promoted to the rank of technician corporal at Camp Lee, Virginia.

Recent Births
Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Ward of R. D. 1, New Waterford, are the parents of a daughter, born yesterday, at Salem City hospital.

Another Casualty
PROVINCETOWN, Mass., June 9.—The "town crier," an institution in this resort, has lost his job because of the war.

Members of the Town Criers association announced today that business conditions did not warrant an appropriation for his salary.

Bell in hand, and wearing buckled shoes, breeches and hose, and long cloak, the "town crier" has strolled the streets every summer for half a century.

Peony Growers Elect
TOPEKA, Kan., June 9.—Charles F. Wassenberg of Van Wert, O., was elected treasurer of the American Peony society at the organization's annual meeting. He also was named to the board of directors. L. W. Lindgren of St. Paul was elected president. One hundred society members exhibited 1,500 entries at the 29th annual show.

British Sub Busy
LONDON, June 9.—The admiralty announced today the British submarine Turbulent had sunk one Italian destroyer, three medium sized supply ships and a small merchant ship in the central Mediterranean.

Theatre Attractions

Coming to the State theatre Wednesday and Thursday is Charles Laughton in "The Turtles of Tahiti," with Jon Hall and Peggy Drake.

The Turtles are a fun-loving irresponsible part-Tahitian family that believes a bank account will last as long as there are checks in the checkbook. They finally get out of their difficulty and come up smiling.

The music in the picture is authentic and is the most natural of any South Seas island stories ever screened. "My Gal Sal," starring Rita Hayworth and Victor Mature, will be seen for the last time tonight.

Tonight and Wednesday at the Grand theatre will be seen "Fly By Night," with Nancy Kelly and Richard Carlson, along with Mississippi Gambler.

never worked before to make the things we need so desperately on the battle line.

"This war is only part of the picture which your generation faces today. For if the war is costing us a fearful price, it is also developing for us new techniques and new abilities. It is placing at our disposal an industrial plant—a set of developed resources—that will simply be beyond price. We shall have the most magnificent opportunity any nation ever had. To accept that opportunity we need only have the good pioneer sense not to be frightened by it just because it calls for new mental attitudes and new habits of thought."

The WPB chairman became an honor initiate of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi at commencement day exercises where he studied as a "kid from the other side of the tracks."

Peter Skinkind is working out arrangements to provide all airplane spotters on Manhattan's tall buildings with hot grog, gratis. That shouldn't break him... He is a rum manufacturer, with distilleries in the West Indies.
